Brano in inglese:

The Doctoral School of Milan - Bicocca is multidisciplinary and has around 700 students enrolled in its current cycles.

The doctoral courses offered by the School are "innovative" for their industrial, interdisciplinary and international characteristics. Approximately 30% of our University's doctoral programmes in the humanities, natural sciences, medical sciences, economics and law are aimed at developing research projects in synergy with companies.

Many doctoral programmes are jointly developed with foreign universities and agreements are in place for six doctoral courses for which a joint qualification is awarded. The Boards of Lecturers are made up of researchers from ours and other universities, companies and research bodies, around 25% of which international.

GRUPPO DI QUESITI N. 2

1. F24 nelle Amministrazioni Pubbliche: finalità e adempimenti.
2. Il candidato illustri le modalità di conferimento di un incarico di lavoro autonomo disciplinato dal regolamento per l'affidamento a terzi estranei all'Università di incarichi di carattere intellettuale.

Brano in inglese:

The Specialisation School is a 'postgraduate' university course that aims to train specialists.

A fixed number of doctors are admitted to the Healthcare Specialisation Schools. For admission to a Specialisation School, it is necessary to have a degree in medicine and surgery with an obligation to obtain the qualification to practise the profession of doctor/surgeon by the start date of the teaching activities, as well as to pass a national competition based on qualification and test organized annually by the MIUR (Ministry of Education, University and Research).

At the end of the training course the Diploma of specialisation in the chosen field is issued.

The Healthcare Specialisation Schools encompass the following three areas: Medical Area, Surgical Area and Clinical Services Area. Within the individual areas the Schools are grouped into uniform classes to enable better use of structural, educational and welfare resources, including the activities referred to as the core area.

GRUPPO DI QUESITI N. 3

1. La composizione dell'imponibile previdenziale.
2. Il candidato illustri oggetto e requisiti della prestazione di un incarico di lavoro autonomo disciplinato dal regolamento per l'affidamento a terzi estranei all'Università di incarichi di carattere intellettuale.
